ABSTRACT

This is the second supplement to "A Bibliography of Generative-Based Grammatical Analyses of Spanish." It includes all available materials that have appeared since February of 1975. This bibliography contains two general divisions: phonology and syntax/semantics. Information regarding the location of reviews and abstracts is included in most of the 82 citations. (Author/CFM)

Second Supplement to
A Bibliography of Generative-Based Grammatical Analyses of Spanish

The purpose of this second supplement to my two previous bibliographies[1] is to include all the materials that have become available since their original publication.[2,3]

The organization of this bibliography is the same as the previous one. It contains two general divisions: Phonology and Syntax and Semantics. The entries are alphabetical by author. In the case of multiple entries for one author, the entries are alphabetical by title. Reviews, abstracts and related information are contained within brackets and follow the appropriate entry. Abbreviations follow those published by the Modern Language Association where available.

The following statistics should be noted for all three bibliographies. Exclusive of reviews and abstracts, phonological entries total 104. Syntactico-semantic studies total 225. The entire number is now 329. At this point, the following observations are worth noting. First, the need for periodic updating of the bibliography indicates that it is still a fertile area for linguistic analysis from a variety of perspectives. Second, syntactic and semantic studies continue to outnumber phonological analyses by a ratio of more than two to one. Third, the significant number of research studies in this field now make an annotated, critical bibliography not only feasible but desirable.[4]

NOTES

1. The bibliographies are "A Bibliography of Generative-Based Grammatical Analyses of Spanish," Lenguaje y Ciencias, 14:2 (1974), 105-125 (ERIC Document ED 094 568) and "A Supplement to a Bibliography of Generative-Based Grammatical Analyses of Spanish," Lenguaje y Ciencias, 15:1 (1975), 124-132 (ERIC Document ED 101 594).
2. The following materials which are scheduled for publication in the future have not been included: Proceedings from Annual Hispanic Colloquia, I, II and III held in conjunction with the past three Summer Institutes of the Linguistic Society of America, The Proceedings from the Linguistic Symposia on the Romance Languages V and VI held at the Universities of Michigan and Montreal respectively and the Simposio sobre corrientes actuales en la dialectología del caribe hispánico held at the University of Puerto Rico.
3. I would like to thank Paola Bentivoglio (Universidad Central de Venezuela, Caracas) and Mark Goldin (Indiana University at Bloomington) for bringing certain entries to my attention.
4. I am currently working on a monograph length project that will incorporate all of the entries of the three bibliographies that I have prepared plus the forthcoming material mentioned in note 2 above.
